

Frequently Asked Questions

The System

What is BookTix Live?

BookTix Live is a dynamic, comprehensive, and secure livestream platform built for ease of use, controlled access, and seamless integration with BookTix online ticketing (though you can opt to use your own ticketing). BookTix Live was built with all of the innovation, security and top-notch customer service you have come to expect from BookTix Ticketing.

How does this system work?

BookTix Live has the advantages of many popular streaming services such as YouTube Live, but also includes the ability to sell tickets and distribute secure access to reduce piracy. We will help you acquire and configure the technology to upload your content to our secure streaming servers. The video will then be disseminated to ticket holders via a secure StreamPass that can only be accessed by one device. The entire system is easily integrated with our ticketing platform (or you can use your own ticketing platform) and can be used for a mix of live in-person and livestream as well.

How does BookTix Live differ from other platforms like YouTube Live, Facebook Live, Zoom, etc?

BookTix was built specifically for limiting access and distribution solely to ticket holders. On other streaming platforms, while there may be private links or passwords, they can still be shared and downloaded. We are providing a secure, one-time access StreamPass to paying patrons with the option to integrate with the BookTix ticketing system. BookTix also offers support for setting up your stream, selling tickets, and the day of your livestream event. If you use both our ticketing system and BookTix live, we are your one-stop-shop for streaming your event, with the added bonus of our awesome customer support team.

Why is BookTix Live a better choice for streaming?

BookTix Live allows you to give exclusive access to your livestream, while also seamlessly integrating with our easy to use ticketing system. Our customer support team is here to help you - from setup, to testing, and we have emergency support staff on call for your livestream event. We have instituted a way for each ticket holder to receive a unique single use StreamPass that can only be used to stream on one device at a time. We are using the same security to protect your stream as the major streaming platforms use. If you are using the BookTix ticketing system, you will also benefit from a reduced streaming cost that can also be passed onto your patrons.

What will my audience experience be like?

If you are using the BookTix system for ticketing, your patrons will purchase their tickets through your online box office. The e-ticket they receive will contain their exclusive StreamPass to view your livestream event at the specified date/time selected by you. They will simply need to click through to start streaming your event. If you are not using the BookTix system for ticketing, you will have the option to upload your patron list for each individual performance, and email your patrons their StreamPass via our system, or download a list and email via your own email provider.

Is BookTix Live just for streaming live shows?

No, you can stream any event with BookTix Live - a concert, webinar, workshop, graduation, and more. The technology and livestream setup is the same, and you sell the tickets (or “comp” tickets if your event is free), then your patrons receive an e-ticket with their StreamPass. Easy!

Can I still use BookTix Ticketing if I’m streaming through another platform?

Absolutely! BookTix Live is a standalone streaming platform - meaning it broadcasts a livestream similar to using YouTube Live, Twitch, Facebook Live, etc - so you would be using BookTix Live as your streaming platform. The advantages to this are being able to integrate your online ticketing if you use our system, as well as providing secure access to your stream for your ticketholders. If you want to use BookTix ticketing with a different platform, you can reach out to a BookTix team member to discuss: info@booktix.com.

How do I sign up? Is there a contract?

To sign up, just fill out this form and start the setup process. There is no contract to use BookTix Live. We build a custom portal for your organization and someone from the BookTix team will reach out to you for more information.

Ticketing

Do I have to use BookTix for my ticketing or can I just use BookTix Live to stream?

You can absolutely “bring your own” ticketing system. In this situation, you would upload a list of your ticket buyers into our system and distribution links would be created. However, please keep in mind that BookTix Live was built to integrate seamlessly with the BookTix ticketing system, and BookTix ticketing clients enjoy a lower price for streaming, as well as the option to include the streaming fee in their processing fees (and have them passed onto the patron, if desired).

I’m interested in your ticketing system as well, how does that work?

The BookTix ticketing system is a free-to-you service that allows you to set up online tickets for any show or event. The all-inclusive credit card processing fee can be passed onto the patron, or hidden within your ticket price. You will have a customizable online box office and full admin portal where you can control your sales, reporting, etc. Our easy to use ticketing system integrates with our streaming platform seamlessly.

Can I use this for a “hybrid” event - part socially distanced in-person, and part virtual/streaming?

Absolutely - the BookTix live system is built to accommodate a fully-virtual livestream event, or if you are using the BookTix ticketing system, you can build a custom hybrid sale system that is part in-person ticketing and part virtual stream ticketing. This means your “live” tickets and your “stream” tickets are all purchased in the same place, through the same online box office, with all of your details and reporting in one convenient place.

How are you handling social distancing for live tickets?

If your organization is able to do an in-person event with an audience, we can build a custom seating chart following your social distancing guidelines. We can also help you set up a “hybrid” event - where you may have a limited number of in-person tickets available, with the remaining tickets being “virtual” tickets for your livestream. Alternatively, if you already have a seating chart in your BookTix admin portal, you can block off individual seats to reflect your social-distancing layout (we are happy to help with this as well!). You can also switch to general admission with a maximum number of tickets capped at your maximum capacity, and handle your in person patrons accordingly - the remainder of your tickets would be virtual/ StreamPass tickets.

Can I still do a fully free event and accept donations?

Yes - you always have the option to “sell” comp tickets to an event, and pay for the fees to stream directly to BookTix. You always have the option to enable donations on your online box office if you are using BookTix for ticketing. If you are using an outside system, you will still just need your patron info to disseminate StreamPasses.

Pricing

How does pricing work?

As with our ticketing platform, our aim is to be as free as possible to the organizations we support. Since there are costs associated with server bandwidth for video distribution, we charge a straightforward per ticket streaming fee. If you are using BookTix for ticketing, we recommend you pass the low per ticket stream fee on to your patrons, which will cover the fee and provide our system at no cost to you. You also have the option to hide the fee in your ticket prices if you prefer. Keep in mind that this streaming fee is separate and in addition to the regular credit card processing fee associated with selling tickets. BookTix ticketing users will benefit from a slightly lower per stream fee for using the integrated system. Check out our pricing guide for more detailed information.

Do I need to use a credit card to sign up?

If you are using BookTix ticketing in conjunction with BookTix Live, you will be able to have your streaming fees deducted from your ticket revenue or covered entirely by your patrons when they purchase tickets. If you are using a different ticketing vendor, you will need to provide a credit card before being able to start your stream, as you will be billed directly.

Livestreaming

I've never done a livestream before, can you help me get set up?

Of course! One of the biggest benefits of using BookTix Live is our customer support. Each level of BookTix Live - Mobile, EZ Stream, and Pro - have varying levels of support from the BookTix team. For example, the EZ Stream option allows you to rent or purchase recommended streaming equipment to help make your stream as successful as possible. The support team provides expert tips and best practices, an extensive help library, as well as one-on-one setup and testing of your stream with a BookTix team member. BookTix also provides emergency on call staff for the day of your show/stream. If you decide to go "Pro", BookTix has reliable partners that we can connect you with to help you with your set up.

Do I need a full team/staff to livestream?

Livestreaming an event is a process best suited to a team for quality and professional results, however, you might be able to accomplish a successful livestream on your own with patience and some practice and training. You may also have an A/V club or volunteers able to help - it is a great opportunity for collaboration and to get creative!

Does it have to be live, or can I stream a pre-recorded show?

As long as you have acquired the proper rights for streaming something pre-recorded, you can livestream a pre-recorded event or a live show. Please reach out your licensing company.

Can we have performers individually recorded and splice together into a cohesive video?

This can be done, and streamed as a pre-recorded video, but please reach out your licensing company to ensure that your rights cover this type of performance.

Can I add other elements to our livestream - like an intro, playbill, or other files?

Yes - using the software we recommend for livestreaming, you have the ability to add on a variety of video, audio, still images, etc.

Do I have to have my performers sign a waiver?

Though we cannot offer legal advice, we do require that you obtain a waiver from anyone within the organization that will be shown on camera. Many schools do this already for their students, but may need to include additional language about livestreaming online. You should also alert audience members of an in-person event that they may be filmed and/or streamed online.

What are the benefits of livestreaming?

Many organizations currently have limits on large gatherings as well as social distancing guidelines to follow in order to be able to hold live events. In this situation, our system helps you follow social distancing guidelines by offering either a fully virtual event, or a "hybrid" event where there are a limited number of in-person tickets available, with the remainder of tickets available for the virtual livestream of the event. Many organizations may also be unable to have an in person event, and will benefit from the ability to stream pre-recorded video, only if allowed by their license/streaming rights. A bonus for all organizations is the ability to now reach a broader audience than you ever have before - you won't be limited by your physical location.

Shows & Licensing

Does the livestream license allow me to stream previously recorded performances or can I use a pre-recorded video?

BookTix is responsible for the technical side of streaming, all licensing decisions must be directed to and approved by the authors and licensing companies prior to setting up a livestream event. Please contact your licensing company for details.

Do you have a list of shows recommended for livestreaming?

This question is best directed towards the agents at the licensing house, but we recommend considering works that can be staged with social distancing and filmed easily without much camera movement.

How does this work with licensing partners?

You should contact your licensing partner for the most up to date information and requirements regarding your livestreamed show. TRW is an exclusive partner and all TRW show titles must be streamed via BookTix Live. Please check our website for a full list of licensing partners that have approved BookTix Live for all of their streaming titles. If your licensing partner is exclusive with another service and you already use BookTix ticketing, please reach out to your licensing house directly to discuss using BookTix.

Technology

What technology do I need to stream?

For our most basic streaming option (Mobile) you will simply need a smart phone or tablet. For our EZ Stream option, we have a recommended equipment kit you can purchase or rent, or you may already have some of the hardware required. For the Pro/Advanced streaming option, you will be working directly with your own professional vendors who will provide guidance on the necessary equipment for the highest quality stream.

Can I purchase my equipment directly from you?

We don't stock the equipment directly, however, we are happy to provide recommendations as well as vendors to purchase or rent the equipment from. Please check out our ready to purchase kit lists.

Will you help me set up all of my hardware and software?

Of course! That is the best part of using BookTix Live - our support team is here to help you every step of the way, from setup to stream.

Can I use my own equipment if I already have it?

Absolutely - just double check our required and recommended equipment list to ensure you have all of the proper equipment.
